Brian Thompson, Senior Engineering Geologist, SWRCB, San Francisco Bay Region, and Ryan Miya, Senior Environmental Scientist, DTSC
as our February Forum speakers.

Enforcement/Compliance Forum

Come listen to our major regulatory agencies talk about enforcement and compliance on Air, Water and Toxics in the Bay Area.

Paul Grazzini is an Air Quality Specialist with the Compliance & Enforcement Division at the Bay Area Air Quality Management District. His current work involves the development of projects, policies and procedures, rules, and regulations in refinery related programs. Prior to his work as a Specialist, Paul served as an Air Quality Inspector for the Air District; inspecting a wide variety of industrial sources, including Petroleum Refineries, landfills, sewage treatment plants, and responding to community complaints. A graduate of Cal State East Bay with a degree in Biology, he has 18 years of experience in environmental regulation.

Brian Thompson is a Senior Engineering Geologist at the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Board and an Enforcement Unit Supervisor. He has worked for the Water Board since 2006 and been its enforcement coordinator since 2008. Prior to working for the Water Board, Brian Thompson worked as a consultant for ten years. His experience is mainly in the environmental and geoscience practice areas, and he is licensed as a Professional Geologist with Hydrogeologist and Engineering Geologist certifications.

Ryan Miya began working at the California EPA's Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC) in 2000 in the Brownfields and Environmental Restoration Program overseeing site characterization and environmental cleanup. He then moved to the Hazardous Waste Management Program in 2014 and is currently working as a treatment, storage, and disposal permitted facility inspector as well as a program improvement team leader in DTSC's Enforcement and Emergency Response Division.
